One member's road to recovery and restitution

After three years on disability recovering from two knee surgeries, Lesley was relieved to return to her job and get her life back on track. As a mom to two girls, one in university and one on her way to college, she was having trouble getting by on her reduced income and relied on credit cards to stay afloat.

After being turned down by the two financial institutions she had banked with for over 30 years, Lesley approached Comtech. She was delighted to be approved right away.

Just two and half years later, Lesley has paid off her consolidation loan in full. Within that time her wages increased three times and with her financial advisor, Hana Fabian's guidance, she decided to increase her payments on her loan with each raise.

"I was always living in the moment, working full time and raising two girls, I didn't even think about putting money away for my retirement," Lesley explains. "As my loan got smaller, I opened some savings accounts. I have since invested in RRSPs, mutual funds and I have my Comtech shares."

Lesley also opened a Tax Free Savings Account last year and feels secure knowing that she now has a little emergency fund she can access without penalty.

Once her loan was paid off, Lesley redistributed her loan payments into her savings. "I was surviving without it and knew if the funds went back into my account they would disappear," she explains. "So by redirecting the funds into my savings I knew I would be much better off in the long run. It's hard to believe that in two years I'm debt free and have a savings balance that's larger than the amount of my consolidation loan."

"I feel really proud about my finances now," Lesley shares. "Hana and I have developed such a comfortable relationship. She really knows me and what my goals are. She sits down with me to offer her advice and to lay out all of my options. She gives me the confidence to make decisions about my finances."
